50/50: Secrets I Learned Running 50 Marathons in 50 Days and How You Too Can Achieve Super Endurance! by Dean Karnazes (2008) • 796.42

Karnazes

Just for the record, Karnazes' 50 marathons in 50 days also took place in 50 states, covering 1,310 miles and burning 160,000 calories along the way. While his accomplishments are extraordinary, the advice he imparts is inspirational for runners at all levels.

The Beginning Runner's Handbook: The Proven 13-Week Walk/Run Program by Ian MacNeill and the Sport Medicine Council of British Columbia (2005)

796.42 MacNeill

This 13-week program will get you up and running—literally. All aspects of running are covered: diet, gear, training, motivation, injury recovery. There is also a focus on family in this third, revised edition: how to remain fit while on vacation, running during and after pregnancy, and running with children.

ChiRunning: A Revolutionary Approach to Effortless, Injury-Free Running by Danny Dreyer (2004) • 796.42 Dreyer

Dreyer, a nationally ranked ultra-marathoner, presents a training program that utilizes principles from other disciplines such as yoga, t'ai chi, and Pilates to enable runners to run faster and farther without getting hurt.

Daniels' Running Formula by Jack Daniels (2005) • 796.42 Daniels

Daniels, noted track and cross-country coach and advisor to Olympic and other world-class athletes, provides different programs for better running performance in distances ranging from 800 meters to the marathon.

The Elements of Effort: Reflections on the Art and Science of Running by John Jerome (1997) • 796.42

Jerome, a published author and seasoned runner, addresses all aspects of running with wit and passion and a nod to the classic writer's reference, The Elements of Style, by Strunk and White.

Fitness Running by Dick Brown (2003) • 796.42 Brown 2003

In the second edition of his book, Brown, an exercise physiologist and personal coach to Olympic and other world-class athletes, offers advice on fitness, stamina, injury recovery, and race preparation. In addition, he outlines programs and workouts that are customizable to accommodate different fitness goals.

Fun on Foot in America's Cities by Warwick Ford (2006) • 917.304 Ford
Going out of town? That's no reason not to run, particularly if the destination is one of the 14 major cities included in Warwick's book with descriptions of 50 running routes and such information as local history, points of interest, and public transit. Sixty-four maps and 125 photographs supplement the book.

Marathon and Half Marathon: The Beginner's Guide by Marnie Caron (2006)
796.42 Caron
Caron, writing in conjunction with the Sport Medicine Council of British Columbia, aims her 26-week training program for first-timers preparing to enter a full or half marathon with the goal of crossing the finish line without targeting a specific finishing time.

Marathon Running: The Complete Training Guide by Richard Nerurkar (2000)
796.42 Nerurkar
World-class runner with victories in international cross-country and marathon events, Nerurkar provides tips, techniques, and training programs for all levels of marathoners.

Marathoning A to Z: 500 Ways to Run Better, Faster, and Smarter by Hal Higdon (2002) • 796.425 Higdon
For over 50 years, Higdon served as Senior Editor at Runner's World magazine and he continues to dispense running advice from his Virtual Training website. His many years of marathon-running knowledge and wisdom are condensed into this volume organized alphabetically by topic and often dispensed with tongue-in-cheek humor. Take a look at his treatment of the topic, "crying."

Marathoning for Mortals: A Regular Person's Guide to the Joy of Running or Walking a Half-Marathon or Marathon by John Bingham and Jenny Hadfield (2003) • 796.42 Bingham

A former couch potato and smoker, Bingham began running when he was 43 and has completed 40 marathons and hundreds of 5Ks and 10Ks. In his Runner's World magazine column, No Need for Speed, Bingham inspires readers to run, and in this book, he and coach Hadfield provide advice, guidance, and training programs for successful running.

No Need for Speed: A Beginner's Guide to the Joy of Running by John Bingham (2002) • 796.42 Bingham
Bingham emphasizes running for the pleasure of it, not for the pursuit of faster finishing times. He offers practical information and inspirational encouragement. Anyone who wants to be a runner can be a runner.

The Nonrunner's Marathon Guide for Women: Get off Your Butt and on with Your Training by Dawn Dais (2006) • 796.42082 Dais 2006

Dais is a self-professed couch potato and hardly a fan of exercise. Still, she decided to run the Honolulu Marathon as a fundraiser for the Stroke Association in 2003. She provides in this book a training program with practical advice delivered with much tongue-in-cheek wit and laugh-out-loud humorous entries from her running journal.

Programmed to Run by Thomas S. Miller (2002) • 796.42 Miller

Miller holds a PhD in exercise and sport science, has completed over 100 marathons, and has coached world-class athletes in cycling, marathoning, and triathloning. His book describes integrating mind (focus and mental coping) and body (stride mechanics and proper breathing) for improved running performance.

Run for It: A Woman's Guide to Running for Emotional and Physical Health by Karen Bridson (2002) • 796.42 Bridson

Bridson, a marathoner and certified personal trainer, whose running contributed to her losing over 30 pound and helped her cope with severe depression advises readers that running can change women's lives by reducing stress, anxiety, and depression; promoting relaxation; decreasing symptoms of PMS; and improving cardiovascular and mental states during pregnancy.

Run Your First Marathon: Everything You Need to Know to Make It to the Finish Line by Grete Waitz (2007) • 796.425 Waitz

Waitz, nine-time winner of the New York Marathon, presents a 16-week program for a successful marathon finish. She includes discussion of such specific issues as cross-training and runners over the age of 40 looking to conquer 26.2 miles for the first time.

Runner's World (magazine)

Currently published by Rodale Press, Runner's World has been the powerhouse magazine of the sport since 1966 when it began as Distance Running News. The magazine covers all aspects of running: product reviews including the biannual shoe buyer's guide, nutrition and training advice, injury-prevention and motivational tips, racing reports, feature stories that appeal to casual joggers and front-of-the-pack speedsters, and more.

Runner's World Complete Book of Running edited by Amby Burfoot (2004)
796.42 Complete

In this revised edition of the title first published in 1997, Runner's World magazine executive editor Burfoot consolidates updated information covering all aspects of running, from buying that first pair of running shoes to improving performance for that racer's edge.

Runner's World Complete Book of Women's Running by Dagny Scott Barrios (2007) • 613.7172 Barrios

Dagny revises and updates the 2000 edition of this title to discuss running and training with a focus on such issues as nutrition, weight loss, safety, pregnancy, and menopause.

Runner's World Complete Guide to Trail Running by Dagny Scott Barrios (2003) 796.42 Barrios

Departing the asphalt to run trails opens up a whole new running experience. Barrios discusses equipment, training and racing, and injury prevention unique to the trail environment.

Running and Being: The Total Experience by George Sheehan (1998)

796.42 Sheehan

Sheehan was a cardiologist who enthusiastically embraced recreational running when he was 44; when he was 50, he set an age-group world record for running the mile. Spilling his passion for running into writing, his authorship earned him the reputation as the philosophical guru of running during the running boom in the late seventies. This is the 20th-anniversary reprint of his New York Times bestseller, a classic in the genre of running non-fiction.

Running for Dummies by Florence Griffith Joyner (1999) • 796.42 Griffith Joyner

When it came to running, world-record holder and three-time Olympic gold (and one-time silver) medalist Griffith Joyner was no dummy. Published soon after her pre-mature death in 1998, this book is both a practical and inspirational guide to all aspects of running as well as a tribute to Griffith Joyner, one of the most vibrant, powerful, and popular track stars of our time.

Running Injuries: Treatment and Prevention by Jeff Galloway and David

Hannaford (2009) • 796.426 Galloway, J

Preventing an injury is always a better deal than treating one. The authors describe how to avoid injuries to the different parts of the feet and legs, but when an injury does occur, how best to treat it, recover from it, and if possible, to continue exercising during recovery.

Running Past 50 by Richard Benyo (1998) • 613.717

We don't get older; we just get better. Benyo, former executive editor of Runner's World and runner of distances from 400 meters to ultramarathons, provides advice to experienced runners who are looking to keep their training vital and motivation intact as they hit the big five-oh.

Running Well by Sam Murphy and Sarah Connors (2009) • 796.42 Murphy

The authors provide the keys to maximizing performance while avoiding injuries to allow runners at all levels to easily assess and improve technique. Anatomical art supplements the thorough coverage of causes and symptoms of dozens of running injuries

Running Within: A Guide to Mastering the Body-Mind-Spirit Connection for Ultimate Training and Racing by Jerry Lynch and Warren A. Scott (1999) • 796.42

Sport psychologist-runner Lynch and physician-triathlete Scott combine scientific research and personal experience to illustrate how successful running results from strengthening and integrating one's physical, mental, and spiritual states.

The Ultimate Guide to Trail Running by Adam W. Chase and Nancy Hobbs (2001) 796.42 Chase

Board members of the American Trail Running Association, Chase (president) and Hobbs (executive director), describe how to get the most from off-road running, from locating trails to using techniques for ascending, descending, and avoiding obstacles, and more.

The Races

Boston: A Century of Running by Hal Higdon (1995)

796.425

The Boston Marathon is the oldest annual marathon in the world. Published to commemorate the 100th anniversary of one of the world's most prestigious road races, this book covers the history of the race in engaging text and captivating photographs, including images of the historic 1967 incident when race director, Will Cloney, and trainer, Jock Semple, attempted to eject Kathrine Switzer from the course after realizing that Switzer's registration had been accepted even though women were not permitted to officially enter.

C.C. Pyle's Amazing Foot Race: The True Story of the 1928 Coast-to-Coast Run across America by Geoff Williams (2007) • 796.42 Williams

It was the year before the Great Depression; the country was enthralled with fads of endurance: flagpole sitting and dance marathons. Against this backdrop, promoter and sports agent, C.C. Pyle, dreamed up a running race, dubbed by detractors as the Bunion Derby, starting in Los Angeles and ending in New York, with $25,000 going to the first-place finisher. Williams presents an energetic and entertaining account of the event and the major players.

The Coolest Race on Earth: Mud, Madmen, Glaciers, and Grannies at the Antarctica Marathon by John Hanc (2009) • 796.425 Hanc

While runners relax over electrolyte-replacement fluids debating which is the most unusual or difficult marathon in the world, the Antarctica Marathon has got to be high on the list. Hanc's humorous account details the challenges of running in this icy inhospitable environment alongside some colorful and inspiring competitors.

The Dipsea: The Greatest Race by Barry Spitz (1993) • 796.424 Spitz

Building on the scholarship of Mark M. Reese's The Dipsea Race, Spitz, Marin historian and author, and an active participant in, and proponent of, the Marin running community, traces the history of the Dipsea Race through 1993. Spitz's exhaustive research includes never-before-published archived information and photographs. He includes a spirited narrative for each yearly account of the race and provides a course map, detailed tables and more.

The Dipsea Race: The History of America's Second Oldest Footrace, 1905-1979 by Mark M. Reese (1979) • 796.426 Reese

Having first run the Dipsea Race in 1965, Reese became enamored of both the event and the Dipsea trail. Reese enthusiastically chronicles the race which includes details of the Women's Dipsea Hikes held 1918 to 1922 which Reese describes as possibly "the only record of American women in the generation before the 1960s competing in large numbers in a real cross-country distance race."

The Human Race by Len Wallach (1978) • 796.426 Wallach

While over 30 years have passed since this book was published, Wallach's work still stands as the only comprehensive history of Bay to Breakers, arguably the most iconic running event in the world.

A Race Like No Other: 26.2 Miles through the Streets of New York by Liz Robbins (2008) • 796.42 Robbins

Robbins, sportswriter for the New York Times, covers the 2007 New York Marathon by describing in detail both the features of the course as well as the background and particular challenges faced by amateur and elite competitors alike. What sets this book apart from other similar titles is Robbins' inclusion of voices from the supporting cast: race organizers, aid-station workers, and performers who provide music along the race route.

The World of Marathons by Sandy Treadwell (1987) • 796.426

With rich text and lavish color photographs, Treadwell effectively captures the spirit and energy of marathon running. Travel through Treadwell's narratives to 26 (hmm, that's appropriate) marathons and five continents: taste the sweat, feel the exhaustion, and exult in the joy.

The Runners

Chariots of Fire directed by Hugh Hudson (2005) • DVD Drama Chariots

This film which garnered four Academy Awards, including Best Picture and Best Music/Original Score, in 1981 dramatizes the true story of two British sprinters competing in the 1924 Olympics. While one athlete runs to glorify God, the other runs to escape anti-Semitism and class prejudice. The musical theme composed by Vangelis may still be heard today blaring from the loudspeakers of spectators who line the routes of road races to inspire and cheer on the runners.

First Marathons: Personal Encounters with the 26.2-Mile Monster edited by Gail Waesche Kislevitz (1998) • 796.425

Thirty-seven runners, from elite racers to middle-of-the-pack survivors tell what it's like to run 26 miles, 385 yards. Let their tales of hope and glory, pain and suffering, grit and determination be the fuel of inspiration.

Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner by Alan Sillitoe (1992) • Fiction Sillitoe

Sillitoe's collection of short stories is at once a portrait and social criticism of the poverty endured by the British working class in the 1950s. In the title story, the main character, Colin Smith, shows promise as a cross-country runner while in reform school and is entered by the reform-school warden into an athletic competition against a local private school. Winning a race can mean different things to different people.

Looniness of the Long Distance Runner: An Unfit Londoner's Attempt to Run the New York City Marathon from Scratch by Russell Taylor (2001) • 796.426 Taylor
Tweaking fellow British writer, Alan Sillitoe's Loneliness title, humor writer Taylor (think of a milder Dave Barry with a Commonwealth accent), decides to run New York so he can write a book about it with all the proceeds going to charity. Taylor takes us on his journey as his poor unsuspecting body wakes up to the task.

The Perfect Mile: Three Athletes, One Goal, and Less Than Four Minutes to Achieve It by Neal Bascomb (2004) • 796.42 Bascomb • Also available as an audiobook on CD or cassette.

Bascomb offers a highly readable account of the dramatic showdown among Roger Bannister, English medical student; John Landy, Australian agricultural student; and Wes Santee, Kansas farm boy; not only to be the first to set this record but to continue pushing beyond it.

Run, Fatboy, Run directed by David Schwimmer (2008) • DVD Comedy-Run
In this romantic comedy, slightly chubby cigarette-smoking Dennis trains to run a marathon to outrace his rival and win back his ex-fiance's affections. This wouldn't be art imitating life, would it? ☺

Sub-4:00: Alan Webb and the Quest for the Fastest Mile by Chris Lear (2003)
796.42 Webb, A

In January of 2001, Alan Webb astounded track fans by running a 3:59:86 mile at an indoor meet, becoming the first American high-school runner to break the four-minute indoor mile. In May of the same year, he went on to run a 3:53.43 mile, breaking Jim Ryun's national high school record which had held for 36 years. Lear's book follows Webb as he enters the University of Michigan to face the rigors of academics and the dynamics and politics of the track team who suddenly find among them a runner in the media spotlight.

To the Edge: A Man, Death Valley, and the Mystery of Endurance by Kirk Johnson (2001) • 796.4252 Johnson

The Badwater Ultramarathon begins at 282 feet below sea level in Death Valley and ends at 8,360 feet on Mount Whitney. The course is 135 miles of searing life-threatening heat, blasting headwinds, and frequent lightning storms. When Johnson's brother, an accomplished athlete, committed suicide, Johnson decided to compete in the 1999 Badwater as a form of grief therapy. In this book, he details with humor and poignance his preparation (not even having completed a half-marathon previously), and the grueling physical challenges and gamut of emotions he experiences on his 54-hour journey.

Tony Richardson's the Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner

directed by Tony Richardson (2007) • DVD Drama-Loneliness
In 1962, Richardson faithfully and credibly brought Alan Sillitoe's short story to the screen. Shot in black and white, the film vividly depicts the dreary life of protagonist Colin Smith, sharply played by Tom Courtenay, his tough reform school incarceration, and the cross-country training runs that lead to the final climactic race.

Triumph: The Untold Story of Jesse Owens and Hitler's Olympics by Jeremy Schaap (2007) • 796.42 Owens, J • Also available as an audiobook on CD.

Jesse Owens was the first American track-and-field athlete to win four gold medals in a single Olympic Games: 100- and 200-meter sprints, long jump, and 4 x 400-meter relay. These victories at the 1936 Games held in Berlin were widely heralded as an embarrassment to Adolph Hitler who envisioned the Games as a propaganda showcase for Aryan supremacy.

Ultramarathon Man: Confessions of an All-Night Runner by Dean Karnazes (2005) • 796.42 Karnazes

When 26.2 miles aren't enough, some go for the ultramarathon. Karnazes has completed the Western States 100, a 199-mile relay with only himself on the team, and the Badwater 135 which he has also won. His feats (also his "feets") are truly impressive as are his determination and dedication which blend with a certain degree of whackiness.

Running on the Web

Dipsea: Mill Valley to Stinson Beach <http://www.dipsea.org/>

Begun in 1905, the Dipsea is run annually on the second Sunday in June and is recognized as the oldest trail race in America. The website presents the history of the race, finishing results, entry information, course description, photos, and more.

Half Marathons <http://www.halfmarathons.net/>

As the name indicates, this site pulls together race information for half marathons only. Events are searchable by geography which includes both the U.S. and international locations as well as through a race calendar. Additional features include a message board and an Articles & Tips section.

Hal Higdon <http://www.halhigdon.com/>

Get running schedules for distances from 5K to the marathon. While Higdon's books and running instruction are available for purchase from this site, there is also a great deal of freely accessible information from this world masters runner, prolific author, and long-time contributor to Runner's World. In addition to running schedules, there are articles on such topics as stretching, carbo loading, and fitness walking.

John Bingham <http://johnbingham.com/>

John Bingham is head of the Penguin Brigade: "In the running lexicon, the word 'Penguin' has come to mean a person who runs more for the joy of running than for recognition and public rewards." Beyond the merchandising, his site offers tips for beginning runners, training, and running gear. Questions to Bingham may be emailed through Ask the Penguin.

Marathon Guide <http://www.marathonguide.com/>

This site is "everything marathoning," including a directory of US and international marathons, news and statistics, training tools, and a community bulletin board.

Run Injury Free with Jeff Galloway <http://www.jeffgalloway.com/>

There are plenty of opportunities to buy materials but there's also a lot of non-fee-based information including running schedules and tips on training and nutrition. The Pace Calculator is a handy feature: type in the time to complete a mile and the calculator computes finishing times and pace for distances of 5K, 10K, half-marathon, marathon, and marathon training.

Runner's World <http://www.runnersworld.com/>

Like its print publication, the RW website provides articles and tips on all aspects of running and includes blogs and streaming video, and plenty of online tools such as calculators (e.g., pace, age-graded, calorie) and finders (e.g., recipe, race, running shoe).
